BEC European U17 Ranking (updated February 2022)

Introduction

The BEC European U17 Ranking is a continuous 52 week ranking which determines the best U17 players in Europe. It is used for seeding purposes for BEC U17 Circuit tournaments as well as for the European U17 Championships.

Tournaments included in the BEC European U17 Ranking

The BEC European U17 Ranking is compiled from a maximum of 7 tournament results.

The tournaments included in the BEC European U17 Ranking are the followings:

- European U17 Circuit tournaments (all 7 results can come from here)
- European Junior Circuit A/B tournaments (maximum 2 tournaments)
- European Junior Circuit C/D tournaments (maximum 2 tournaments)
- European Grade 3 tournaments (maximum 2 tournaments)
- European U15 Championships (shall count until next edition is played)
- European U17 Championships (shall count until next edition is played)
- European Junior Championships (shall count until next edition is played)
- World Junior Championships (shall count until next edition is played)

The seven (7) best tournament results are included in the BEC European U17 Ranking, where a maximum of 3 European Junior Circuit tournaments and a maximum of 2 European Grade 3 tournament results can be included in the BEC European U17 Ranking.

If a player has less than seven (7) results, then the total points earned across the participated tournaments will be added together to create the total amount of ranking points. This total will be the player's BEC European U17 Ranking.

If a player has more than seven (7) results, then the best seven (7) results will be added, with the total amount being used as the player's BEC European U17 Ranking (as per the restrictions on the different tournament grades as listed above).

Additional information

The BEC European U17 Ranking is for individual players and not for whole double pairs (this is similar to the BWF World Junior Ranking).

In doubles events the total combined ranking points of the two players are decisive for the ranking of pairs for M&Q and seeding purposes.

Players must be under 17 years of age to be eligible to be included in the BEC European U17 Ranking.

Team event results do not count towards the BEC European U17 Ranking.

The BEC European U17 Rankings are published on Monday every week and are available on the Badminton Europe website.
